we examine the evidence of contagion during the pre world war i era and the interwar and contrast our findings with the evidence of contagion from the recent crises in asia and latin america using weekly data on bond prices and interest rates we investigate the extent to which bilateral cross market correlations rise following the onset of a crisis after correcting for heteroscedasticity ala forbes and rigobon 1998 1999 we find little evidence of significant increases in cross market correlations in either the earlier regimes or in the more recent period we use principle components analysis to assess the extent of comovement across all markets as well as within various groups of markets prior to and after the onset of a crisis countries are grouped into regions as well as along the lines of advanced and emerging there is little evidence to suggest that cross country linkages are tighter in the aftermath of a financial crisis for the recent period there is however some evidence of stronger comovement during periods of instability in earlier regimes
